The Rise of Mass Democracy, 1820-1840

The nation’s transition to a more participatory democracy was achieved by expanding suffrage from a system based on property ownership to one based on voting by all adult white men, and it was accompanied by the growth of political parties.

I. The "New Democracy"
   A. By the 1820s, politicians made an increased effort to appeal to the voting masses.
      1. Most high offices were still held by wealthy citizens.
      2. Change in emphasis:
         a. Jeffersonian democracy: the people should be governed as little as possible; gov’t for the people
         b. Jacksonian democracy: government should be done directly by the people
            • This idea underlay Jackson’s spoils system in the 1830s.
   B. The New Democracy was based on universal white manhood suffrage rather than property qualifications: the common man now became more influential.
      1. Between 1812 and 1821, six new western states granted universal manhood suffrage.
      2. Between 1810 and 1821, four eastern states significantly reduced voting requirements.
         • However, by 1860 only the New England states still allowed African Americans to vote in the North.
      3. The South was last region to grant universal white manhood suffrage.
      4. New voters demanded politicians that would represent common peoples' interests.
      5. Frederick Jackson Turner: "The Significance of the Frontier on American History" (1893)
         • Thesis: The existence of cheap unsettled land in the West created a frontier society that shaped the American character—the U.S. became more democratic and egalitarian.
   C. Rise of workingmen’s parties
      1. Laborers in the east formed organizations that demanded free education for their children, a 10-hour work day, and an end to debtors’ prisons.
      2. Some groups became violent (e.g., during the Panic of 1837).
II. Causes of the New Democracy
A. Panic of 1819
1. Workers and farmers blamed bankers (especially the Bank of the U.S.—BUS) and speculators for foreclosures on their farms.
2. Their solution was to get more politically involved, especially those who supported Jackson.
   a. They sought increased influence on the gov't in order to reform the BUS.
   b. State legislatures waged tax wars against the BUS.
      (see McCullough v. Maryland, in Period 4.1)
   c. States passed laws reducing debtors’ prisons.

B. The Missouri Compromise
1. Northern opposition to Missouri’s admission as a slave state made southerners fearful the federal gov’t would violate states' rights.
2. Goal of white southerners: control the federal gov't to protect southern interests, especially slavery

C. New Political Age
1. The two-party system reemerged by 1832: Democrats vs. National Republicans/Whigs
2. Voter turnout rose dramatically: 25% of eligible voters in 1824; 78% in 1840
3. A new style of campaigning developed (especially by the 1840 election): banners, badges, parades, barbecues, free drinks, baby kissing, etc.
4. Voting reform
   a. Members of the Electoral College were increasingly chosen directly by the people rather than by state legislatures.
      • 18 of 24 states in the 1824 election used the popular vote to select electors.
      • This practice began to resemble today's system.
   b. The demise of the caucus occurred as it was now viewed as elitist.
      • In the caucus system, members of Congress would meet in groups to nominate candidates for president.
      • In 1831, the first nominating convention was held by the Anti-Masonic party.
      • By 1836, both major parties used nominating conventions to nominate their candidates.
By the 1820s and 1830s, new political parties arose—the Democrats, led by Andrew Jackson, and the Whigs, led by Henry Clay—that disagreed about the role and powers of the federal government and issues such as the national bank, tariffs, and federally funded internal improvements.

III. Election of 1824: "The Corrupt Bargain"

A. Candidates: Andrew Jackson, Henry Clay, William H. Crawford, and John Quincy Adams
   - All four rivals were "Republicans" as only one party still existed.

B. Jackson polled the most popular votes but didn't get a majority of the electoral vote.
   1. The Twelfth Amendment states the House of Representatives must choose among the top three finishers if no candidate has a majority.
   2. Clay finished 4th but was Speaker of the House and in charge of the process to select the new president.
      a. Clay hated Jackson, his major political opponent in the West.
      b. J. Q. Adams was a nationalist who supported Clay's "American System."

C. In early 1825, the House elected Adams president.
   1. This was largely due to Clay's influence.
   2. Jackson lost the election despite having had a plurality of votes.
   3. Adams announced Clay as secretary of state a few days later.
      - Jackson's supporters called the affair the "corrupt bargain."
   4. Adams' presidency would be plagued by increasing sectionalism and the fracturing of the Republican party.

IV. The "Tariff of Abominations" (1828)

A. Congress had increased the tariff in 1824 from 23% on dutiable goods to 37%; the tariff was largely protective.

B. New Englanders pushed for passage of a new tariff in 1828 that would raise duties to an unprecedented 45%.
1. Daniel Webster argued for it (reversing his previous position on the 1816 tariff).
2. John C. Calhoun argued against it arguing the tariff would hurt the South.

C. The tariff passed and furious Southerners called it the “Tariff of Abominations.
1. Southerners feared the power of the federal gov’t had become too strong.
2. Southerners argued they would suffer both as consumers and exporters.
3. John C. Calhoun's "The South Carolina Exposition"
   a. Written secretly as Calhoun was Adams’ vice-president
   b. It denounced the tariff as unjust and unconstitutional.
   c. It claimed states should nullify the tariff (similar to Jefferson’s and Madison’s Virginia and Kentucky Resolutions of 1798).
   d. He hoped to save the Union by lowering the offensive tariff.
   e. No other states supported South Carolina in its protest.

V. Election of 1828
A. Intense feuding continued between the two factions of the Republican party
   1. National Republicans supported President John Quincy Adams
      • They accused Jackson’s wife, Rachel Robards Jackson, of being a bigamist.
   2. Democrats supported Jackson.

B. Jackson defeated Adams 178 electoral votes to 83
   1. First president from the West; seen as a great “common man”
      • Ironically, he owned one of largest plantations in the west and owned many slaves.
   2. Jackson’s support came from the West, South, and laborers on the east coast
   3. The election came to be called the "The Revolution of 1828."
      a. No sitting president had been removed since John Adams in 1800.
      b. The increased voter turnout from the “New Democracy” was decisive.
      c. The political balance of power was shifting from the East to the expanding West.
      d. America hitherto had been ruled by educated wealthy elites: Federalist shippers and Jeffersonian planters.

C. President Andrew Jackson ("Old Hickory")
   1. He personified the new West.
   2. He saw the federal gov’t as a haven for wealth that was detached from common folks
   3. Like Jefferson, he sought to reduce the role of the federal gov’t in favor of states’ rights; he hated Clay’s "American System."
4. He was a strong unionist and nationalist (to the dismay of the South); he believed in federal supremacy over the states.
5. He believed in a strong presidency: he defied will of Congress and the Supreme Court
   a. He employed the veto 12 times; his six predecessors combined only used the veto 10 times.
   b. At times, he flouted the authority of the Supreme Court.
   c. Opponents condemned him as "King Andrew I" for his perceived abuse of power

VI. A Spoils System was brought to the federal government on a large scale
   A. The practice involved rewarding political supporters with public offices, regardless of merit.
      • Secretary of State Martin Van Buren was the main architect of the spoils system as he had engineered a political machine in New York (known as the “Albany Regency”).
   B. Jackson believed in the ideal of "rotation in office" or "turn about is fair play.
      1. Goal: Let as many citizens as possible hold office for at least a short time.
      2. He sought to remove Adams-Clay officials with loyal Jacksonians.
      3. Yet, only 20% of incumbents were removed.
         • Still, it set a precedent for "clean sweeps" in subsequent presidencies.
   C. Consequences of the spoils system
      1. A national political machine was built around Jackson.
      2. Competence and merit were subordinated and many able citizens were left out as a result.
      3. Political corruption resulted.

VII. Sectionalism in the Jackson Administration
   A. "Kitchen Cabinet"
      1. Jackson met at times with an unofficial group of about 13 temporary advisors.
         • Some were newspaper people who kept Jackson in touch with public opinion.
      2. Critics branded these members as the "Kitchen Cabinet."
         a. They were angry that advisors not answerable to Congress as was the official cabinet.
         b. Congress saw it as a threat to checks and balances.
      3. Yet, the group never met officially and its influence was greatly exaggerated.
      4. Not unconstitutional: presidents are free to consult with unofficial advisers
B. Webster-Hayne Debate, 1830
      a. As a South Carolinian (one of Calhoun's protégés) he represented a states' rights view.
      b. He accused New England of disloyalty during the War of 1812.
      c. He condemned New England's selfishness regarding the protective tariff.
      d. He proclaimed Calhoun's doctrine of nullification was the only means of protecting southern rights.
         • Hayne’s arguments were later used by nullifiers and secessionists.
   2. Daniel Webster, from New England, spoke on behalf of the Union.
      a. He insisted the people, not the states, had framed the Constitution; he assailed the doctrine of nullification.
         • He thus refuted Jefferson and Madison’s “compact theory” of government in the Virginia and Kentucky Resolutions.
      b. "Liberty and Union, now and forever, one and inseparable."
   3. Result of the debate:
      a. It illustrated the rising sectionalism in the country.
      b. Some credit Webster for helping win the Civil War by arousing a new generation of northerners to fight for the ideal of Union.

C. Calhoun resigned the vice presidency in 1832.
   1. The 1832 Tariff Controversy became the major wedge between Calhoun and Jackson. (see below)
   2. Up until this time, Calhoun had publicly been a strong nationalist.
      a. He saw himself in line for the presidency after Jackson served one term.
      b. His falling out with Jackson destroyed his presidential hopes.
   3. Calhoun became a fierce sectionalist; as a leader of the Senate he rigorously protected slavery and states rights’.

VIII. Nullification controversy of 1832
   A. South Carolina was still fuming over the "Tariff of Abominations" (1828).
      1. The tariff was seen as punitive in the short term.
      2. It was seen as a precedent for federal interference with states’ rights in the long term.
      3. The push for nullification in the South Carolina legislature had failed in 1828.
   B. Tariff of 1832
      1. Jackson attempted to lower the tariff of 1828 to conciliate the South.
         a. Congress lowered duties to 35% from about 45%, or the 1824 level.
         b. Yet, the law was still protective; not merely a revenue-based tariff.
         c. It fell far short of meeting all Southern demands.
      2. South Carolina took drastic action by nullifying the Tariff of 1832.
         a. It called upon the state legislature to make necessary military preparations.
b. It threatened to secede from the Union if Jackson attempted tariff collections by force.

3. Jackson condemned nullification
   a. He was violently angry in private; threatened to "hang" the nullifiers, including Calhoun.
   b. He dispatched modest naval and military reinforcements to South Carolina while preparing a sizable army quietly.
   c. Governor Robert Hayne of South Carolina (the former senator who had debated Webster) rigorously advocated nullification.
   d. The standoff threatened a possible civil war.

C. Henry Clay proposed a compromise tariff in 1833.
   1. The 1832 tariff would be reduced by 10% over eight years.
      a. Rates would eventually be about the 1816 level: 20-25%.
      b. Many in New England and the Mid-Atlantic states opposed it.
      c. Calhoun and the South favored it.
      d. The compromise Tariff of 1833 squeezed through Congress.
      e. South Carolina reluctantly repealed its nullification ordinance.

   2. The Force Bill (1833) was passed by Congress as a face-saving device.
      a. The president in the future could use military force to collect federal tariffs if necessary.
      b. It was dubbed the "Bloody Bill" by South Carolinians (who symbolically nullified it).

D. Aftermath
   1. Stepping stone to Civil War: South Carolina gradually abandoned nullification in favor of secession by 1860.
   2. The tariff crisis was the most compelling reason for the split of Jackson and Calhoun
   3. Henry Clay was later criticized by northerners as being an "appeaser" to the South.
      • Yet, Clay saved the Union from a civil war that the north was unprepared for.

IX. Election of 1832
A. Henry Clay (National Republican) vs. Andrew Jackson (Democrat)
   1. Jackson earlier favored a one-term presidency; his cronies convinced him to stay.
   2. Clay was author of the "American System," a war hawk, and a western senator.
      • He made the recharter of the BUS a centerpiece of his campaign but it backfired when Jackson killed the unpopular BUS. (see below)
      • Jackson had the support of the masses that overwhelmed the vote of wealthier Americans.

B. New political features were introduced in the 1832 campaign.
   1. The Anti-Masonic party became the first third party in an American presidential election.
      a. It opposed the secrecy of the Masonic order, an 18th century fraternal organization using rationalist Christian doctrine, ritual symbolism, and civic virtue.
- Masons recruited upwardly mobile middle-class professionals, business leaders, and politicians (like George Washington and Andrew Jackson).

b. Masons were accused of using its membership to influence appointments to offices and to gain economically at the expense of the masses.
c. The Anti-Masonic party attracted evangelical groups eager to fuse moral and religious reforms with politics (e.g. keeping Sabbath Day holy.)
  - Meanwhile, Jacksonians were against all gov't meddling in social and economic life.

2. National nominating conventions were organized by all three parties in 1831-32, a bit like today's system.
  - National Republicans and Anti-Masons had formal party platforms.

X. Jacksonian economic policy
A. Main aim: divorce the gov’t from the economy (in essence, laissez faire)
  1. Anti-monopoly; the common man should have a chance to succeed
  2. Return to Jeffersonian democracy: gov’t role should be limited
  3. Give more power to states to promote equality of opportunity

B. End of the Bank of the United States (BUS)
  1. Jackson distrusted the BUS (the "moneyed monster") and huge businesses.
     - Jackson may have tolerated the BUS’s recharter in 1836 with reforms.
  2. Henry Clay pushed to recharter the BUS in the 1832 as a political ploy against Jackson during the election.
     a. The recharter would create a dilemma for Jackson:
        - If he signed it, he’d alienate his western supporters.
        - If he vetoed it, he’d alienate wealthy and influential supporters in the East.
     b. Jackson: "The Bank... is trying to kill me, but I will kill it."
  3. Jackson vetoed the BUS's charter in 1832.
     a. He assailed the bank as monopolistic and unconstitutional.
        - He criticized Nicholas Biddle, head of the BUS, for his alleged favoritism toward elite and for the BUS’s forced foreclosures in the West.
     b. Jackson acted as if the president was superior to the judicial branch.
        - The Supreme Court had ruled it constitutional in McCulloch v. Maryland (1819).
     c. Jackson's demagogic message appealed to the masses.
     d. In response, the Senate censured Jackson (the censure was later expunged by the Democrats).
  4. BUS strengths before it was killed by Jackson
     a. Sound organization
     b. Reduced bank failures
     c. Issued sound bank notes while the U.S. was flooded with depreciated paper local and state money.

d. Spurred economic expansion by making credit and currency available to businesses

e. Safe depository for federal funds; transferred and disbursed its money.

5. "Pet bank" scheme

a. Jackson aimed to weaken the BUS and Biddle.

b. He transferred federal deposits from the BUS to 23 state "pet banks."
   • It was overseen by Secretary of Treasury Roger B. Taney (soon to be appointed by Jackson as Chief Justice of the Supreme Court).
   • This effectively killed the Second National Bank four years before it was set to expire.

6. Specie Circular: public lands now had to be purchased with “hard” money

a. In 1836, "Wildcat" currency had become unreliable, especially in the West.
   • This exacerbated the ongoing inflation problem

b. Jackson authorized the Treasury to issue a Specie Circular • "Hard money" brought hard times to the West as farmers did not have hard money to buy land.

c. Inflation continued nonetheless and led to land speculation that contributed to the Panic of 1837.

C. General incorporation laws (beginning with Connecticut in 1837)

1. Traditionally, corporate charters granted from state governments were seen by many as monopoly-oriented.

2. States began to make incorporation easier, thus spurring the U.S. economy with small and medium-sized businesses.

3. Limited liability: business owners were now allowed to be a separate entity from their corporation.
   a. If the corporation went bankrupt, the business owner still kept his own money.
   b. It reduced the risk of owning a business.

4. Jacksonian in nature

D. Charles River Bridge decision (Charles River Bridge v. Warren Bridge), 1837

1. Builders of Charles River Bridge had been given a charter by Massachusetts in 1780.

2. In 1828, the Warren Bridge Co. was granted a charter by Massachusetts to build a bridge 300 yards from the Charles River Bridge (whose company made profits from tolls).
   • Heavy traffic necessitated another bridge.

3. Charles River Bridge Co. sued Warren Bridge Co. since the new charter interfered with the U.S. Constitution's provision for states not to interfere with contracts (Dartmouth v. Woodward).

4. The Supreme Court, led by Chief Justice Roger B. Taney, granted
Warren Bridge Co. the right to build the new bridge.

5. Significance: It encouraged economic development in transportation and other public facilities via competition (began to end monopolies in public facilities).
   - Jacksonian in nature.

E. Maysville Road veto
1. Jackson favored states’ rights (at the expense of economic nationalism).
2. He refused to spend federal money for intrastate internal improvements (e.g. roads and canals).
   - Strong states' rights principles (like Madison who vetoed Calhoun’s Bonus Bill in 1817)
3. He vetoed the bill for improving the Maysville Road in Kentucky.

Frontier settlers tended to champion expansion efforts, while American Indian resistance led to a sequence of wars and federal efforts to control and relocate American Indian populations.

XI. Removal of American Indians
A. By 1830, most territories east of the Mississippi had become states.
   1. Most American Indian tribes were surrounded by white settlements.
   2. Jackson did not regard the tribes as separate nations within individual states.
      - He harbored some protective feelings toward American Indians yet saw them as "uncivilized."

B. Indian Removal Act, 1830
1. Jackson proposed the bodily removal of remaining Indians—especially the Five Civilized Nations: Cherokee, Creek, Choctaw, Chickasaw and Seminoles—beyond the Mississippi to Indian Territory (modern-day Oklahoma).
2. Individual American Indians might remain if they adopted white ways.
3. As a result, more than 100,000 American Indians were forcibly uprooted and moved in the 1830s.
   a. The U.S. gov’t promised that American Indian lands in Indian Territory would remain permanently in Indian hands (“as long as the grass grows and the water runs”).
   b. Land-hungry Americans continued to push west and eventually encroached on Indian Territory in the 1880s and 1890s.
4. The Bureau of Indian Affairs was established in 1836 to administer relations with American Indians.

C. Cherokee
1. They developed certain aspects of society similar to whites.
   a. Sequoya created a Cherokee syllabic alphabet (85 characters) and the Cherokee had their own newspaper, the Cherokee Phoenix.
   b. They wrote a constitution similar to the U.S.; similar electoral system.
   c. They established an efficient agriculture-based economy.
d. Despite strong attempts to assimilate, the Cherokee not accepted by white society

2. The Cherokee nation sat on valuable land in northeast Georgia.
   a. Gold was discovered in 1829 and local whites wanted to mine Cherokee land.
   b. The land could also be used for cotton and was coveted by land-hungry white farmers.
   c. The Cherokee right to land had been recognized in the Treaty of 1791.
   • Many Georgians had ignored the federal laws.

3. Cherokee Nation v. Georgia, 1831
   a. The Cherokee challenged a Georgia law that made Cherokee laws null and void.
   b. The Supreme Court ruled the Cherokee lacked jurisdiction over its land as it was a "domestic dependent, nation" possessing some sovereignty, but not a foreign nation.
   • This represented a major blow to Cherokee rights as an independent nation.

4. Worcester v. Georgia, 1832
   a. John Marshall ruled that Georgia’s laws had no jurisdiction inside Cherokee territory and the Cherokee could invite whomever it wished on its land.
   • Samuel Worcester, a missionary living with the Cherokee for years, was forced by Georgia to take an oath of allegiance or leave Cherokee land; he refused and was arrested.
   b. Worcester was released from jail within 3 months.
   c. Despite the Court’s support for Cherokee autonomy on its lands, Jackson proceeded with American Indian removal.

5. Trail of Tears
   a. In 1838, 18,000 Cherokee were forcibly removed from their homes, and marched 1,000 miles to Indian Territory (Oklahoma).
   • 4,000 died from malnutrition, exposure, cholera, and harsh treatment.
   • Soldiers forced the march with rifles and bayonets.
   b. Earlier, 25% of Choctaws died en route to Indian Territory between 1831-1835.
   c. 3,500 of 15,000 Creeks died during removal in 1836.

D. Black Hawk War (1832)
   1. Braves in Illinois and Wisconsin led by Black Hawk resisted removal on lands west of Lake Huron.
   2. They were crushed by U.S. troops.
   3. The area west of Lake Michigan became open for white settlement.

E. Seminoles in Florida
   1. Seminoles were ordered by the U.S. to merge with their old enemy – the Creek – and relocate to Indian Territory.
   • They refused as the Creek were slave owners and many Seminoles had escaped Creek slavery.
   2. They waged bloody guerrilla war in the Second Seminole War (1835-1842) that left 1,500 U.S. soldiers dead.
• It was the bloodiest American Indian conflict in U.S. history.
3. 4/5, or 3,000, were forcibly moved to Oklahoma; 3,000 still survive today.

XII. The Birth of Texas
A. The U.S. dropped its claim to Texas when it bought Florida from Spain in 1819.

B. In 1823, a newly independent Mexico granted Stephen Austin the right to settle in Texas.
1. Immigrants were to be Catholic and properly Mexicanized.
2. Restrictions were largely ignored by Americans in Texas.

C. Friction between Mexicans and Americans occurred over slavery, immigration, and local rights.
1. Mexico emancipated its slaves in 1830 and prohibited importation of slaves into Texas.
2. Mexico eventually prohibited further settlement by Americans.
3. Texans refused to abide by Mexico's decree; new settlers and slaves continued to pour in.
4. In 1835, Mexican dictator Santa Anna outlawed all local rights and raised an army to exert control in Texas.

D. Texas declared independence in 1836.
1. Sam Houston was commander in chief of Texas.
2. Santa Anna's 6,000 man army invaded Texas.
   • Killed 342 American volunteers who surrendered at Goliad
   • Killed all Americans at the Alamo (including Davy Crockett and James Bowie)
   • Americans were outraged: "Remember the Alamo", "Remember Goliad," “Death to Santa Anna”

E. Houston's army was victorious at the Battle of San Jacinto.
1. Santa Anna signed two treaties: 1) withdraw Mexican troops and 2) recognize the Rio Grande as Texas' southern border (Nueces River had been original border)
   • Santa Anna and the Mexican government repudiated the treaties upon his release leaving the Texas issue unresolved.
2. American aid was important to Texas' fight for independence.
   a. America's public opinion nullified existing U.S. neutrality legislation.
   b. Mexicans complained the U.S. was obligated to honor its international neutrality law.

F. The issue of a potential new slave state stirred up sectionalism.
1. For Jackson, recognizing Texas might hurt the election of his hand-picked successor, Martin Van Buren, for president.
2. Jackson recognized Texas the day before he left office in 1837.
3. Texas officially petitioned to be annexed.
a. Antislavery Whigs in the North opposed it.
b. Southern Democrats welcomed the idea of annexation.

4. Texas was thus left to protect itself as an independent nation.
a. Texas feared reprisals from Santa Anna and Mexico.
b. Texas therefore courted Britain and France for aid.
c. Balance of power politics threatened the southern U.S.

XIII. Election of 1836
A. Birth of the Whigs (heirs of Hamilton’s Federalist ideas)
   1. They emerged in 1834 when Clay and Calhoun joined forces to pass a motion censuring Jackson for his removal of federal deposits from the BUS.
      • They shared a mutual hatred of Jackson.
   2. They evolved into a national political party of groups alienated by Jackson.
      a. Supporters of Clay’s “American System”
      b. States’ rights advocates who were offended by Jackson’s anti-nullification views
      c. Larger northern industrialists and merchants
      d. Evangelical Protestants (many had been Anti-Masons in 1832)
      e. Nativists who opposed Irish immigration
   3. Many Whig principles were the foundation for the modern-day Republican party.
   4. William Henry Harrison, the hero of the Battle of Tippecanoe, emerged as the Whig candidate, defeating Clay.

B. Martin Van Buren was Jackson’s hand-picked successor.
   1. Old and ailing, Jackson decided not to run for a third term.
   2. He decided to run a third term vicariously through Van Buren.
   3. Van Buren defeated Harrison 170-73.

C. The Election of 1832 had ushered in the “Second Party System”
   1. Democrats and Whigs would dominate national politics until 1852.
   2. The first party system lasted from c. 1796 to 1816: Federalists vs. Democratic-Republicans
The “Second Party System”: c. 1832-1852

XIV. Jackson's Legacy (Quick Review)

A. Positive Contributions

1. Demonstrated the value of strong executive leadership in the 1832 tariff controversy
2. Was perceived as the champion of the common people in politics
3. Established the Democratic Party (that sparked the 2-party system with the Whigs as opposition)

B. Liabilities

1. Spoils system led to political corruption on a national scale
2. Killing the BUS resulted in thousands of bank failures and was a cause of the Panic of 1837
3. Specie circular hurt western farmers
4. Flouted the authority of the Supreme Court vis-à-vis Cherokee and the BUS
5. American Indian removal
6. Cabinet crisis and break with Calhoun resulted in increased sectionalism
XV. Panic of 1837

A. Causes

1. Most important cause: overspeculation
   a. Land speculators in the West borrowed heavily from "wildcat banks."
   b. Speculation spread to canals, roads, and slaves.
   c. Speculators were unable to pay back loans thus causing bank failures.
2. Jacksonian finance, including the BUS war and the Specie Circular, further hurt the economy.
3. Flour Riot: crop failures forced grain prices so high that NY mobs stormed warehouses and broke open flour barrels. (During Jackson's last days in office.)
4. The failure of two major British banks caused English investors to call in their foreign loans.
   • This hurt U.S. banks and helped trigger the beginning of the panic.

B. Results

1. American banks collapsed by the hundreds including "pet banks" which lost several million dollars in gov't funds.
2. Commodity prices and sale of public land fell; customs revenues dried up.
3. Factories closed; unemployment soared.
4. The depression lasted 5 years.

C. Whig proposals were blocked by President Van Buren (Jacksonian ideal of limited gov't)
   • Whigs sought expansion of bank credit, higher tariffs, and internal improvement funds (Clay’s “American System”).

D. Treasury Bill of 1840 ("Divorce Bill")

1. Van Buren was convinced that part of the depression was due to federal funds being given to private banks.
2. He held the Jacksonian principle of "divorcing" gov't from banks.
3. Independent Treasury System established: gov't could put its surplus in certain banks in several of the nation’s larger cities.
4. Funds were safe but it denied the banking system of reserves which decreased available credit resources.
5. Policy was condemned by the Whigs and repealed next year when they won the presidency.
   • Reenacted in 1846 by the Democrats after Polk became president.

XVI. Election of 1840

A. Van Buren was nominated again by the Democrats.
B. Whigs again chose William H. Harrison over both Clay and Webster.
   • Slogan: “Tippecanoe and Tyler Too” (John Tyler was the Whig vice presidential candidate)
C. Voters blamed the depression on Van Buren (the party in power).
D. Whigs created false myths about Harrison being a poor farmer from a log cabin: "Log Cabin and Hard Cider"
In fact, he was born into a wealthy plantation family in Virginia.

E. Harrison defeated Van Buren 234-60 in the Electoral College.

F. Significance
1. First mass-turnout election in American history
2. Propaganda and silly slogans set an unfortunate example for future campaigns.
3. The Liberty Party, the first anti-extension of slavery party, was also in the race with James G. Birney as its candidate.
